This Manhattan dining room is painted a moody shade. Benjamin Moore's Narra-gasset Green, which often reads as blue. Curtains in Fadin Borgh's Monica and striped chairs in C&C Milano's Venezia Rigato add the vigor of orange. Artistic frame armchairs in Penny Morrison's Gobi. Farrow & Ball's Tented Stripe wall-paper covers a hallway beyond. Urchin light fixture, Mecox.

HOLLYWOOD ENDING
 Upon leaving the film business, a young designer creates the ideal location for her own story to play out, from all-ages spaghetti dinners to playtime with her boys.

LEFT: To soothe city-frayed nerves, the front door opens to entry walls painted in Benjamin Moore's Palladian Blue. The Urban Electric Co.'s Urban Smokebell pendant matches the industrial feel of the vintage Dutch steel console. Patricia lamps, Christopher Spitzmiller. BELOW: The pantry cabinets, painted in Farrow & Ball's Down Pipe, blend with Gracie's Papier Chinois wallpaper. The door is clad in Rogers & Goffigon's Picardie leather.
